

TrialVista® Platform Wins Best of SaaS Showplace Award

Staunton, VA August 2009 –

Intuit Incorporated's on-line database Quickbase®, the platform that is the foundation for TrialVista®, Atlantic Research Group's industry best Clinical Trial Management System (CTMS) has been named the latest winner of the Best of SaaS Showplace \(BoSS\) Awards program. This program is aimed at promoting the measurable business benefits being delivered by today's Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) solutions.

The BoSS Awards program was announced in January 2009 as the latest initiative by THINKstrategies to bring attention to SaaS and cloud computing companies which are producing tangible business benefits for specific user organizations. These benefits include increased sales, lower costs, higher customer satisfaction, faster operations, and greater profitability.

“We are excited to continue to use Quickbase® as the foundation for TrialVista® and build on an already powerful and dynamic CTMS. Our clients have been able to take advantage of TrialVista's powerful reporting capabilities, ease and speed of implementation, and ARG's service level's to make a significant impact on clinical development timelines. Quickbase® allows us to maximize our operational resources and better manage our trials.” Says Hunter Walker, Vice President, Clinical Systems.

The growing expense, complexity, size and geographic spread of clinical trials demands a comprehensive, cost effective Clinical Trial Management System (CTMS) — one that makes managing the dynamic requirements of bringing molecules to market both practical and productive. ARG has applied extensive experience with successful clinical trial management and Intuit's Quickbase® on-line database to the creation of TrialVista®, a flexible, customizable system that combines meticulous regulatory compliance with streamlined information flow, efficient collaboration and comprehensive reporting.
